Home Bolted Meal

Mr. H. A. Fausett, who works with his head as well as hands, knowing that bolted meal was in great favor, and literally having corn to burn, bethought himself that he could supply the staple as well as the millers of the West. Having a grist mill in connection with his cotton gin, he put in a bolter, and began selling bolted meal to all who wanted it. At first supplying the small wants of individuals, he soon had larger demands from some of the stores, and now is doing quite a large business in this necessary commodity. He says that if his trade continues to increase he will put in a larger mill and bolter. This is a most praiseworthy way of keeping money at home.

Resolutions of Respect

MARION LODGE, No. 19, F. & A. M.

Whereas, on the 10th day of October, 1899, God, in his infinite wisdom, saw fit to remove from our ranks our beloved brother,

JAMES H. WHITFIELD, our faithful past worshipful master of Marion Lodge, No. 19, F. & A. M.; and

Whereas, his untimely death has filled our hearts with the deepest sorrow, for we knew him as a faithful Master Mason, one who shunned no duty, true to his obligations, and a strict adherent to the tenets of our ancient and beloved institution; and

Whereas, in the death of our beloved brother the community has lost a citizen upright in character, just in his dealings, sympathetic in heart, and patriotic to his country; the church a consecrated member, a consistent follower of Christ, and a humble and zealous worker for the blessed Master;

Resolved, first: That while we bow with humble submission to His will, we cannot fail to realize that this lodge has lost a valued and faithful brother member.

Resolved, second: That we tender to his grief stricken wife and daughter the heartfelt sympathy of this lodge, and ask the Great Giver of all good to comfort and sustain them in this their sad affliction.

Resolved, third: That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our lodge, and that a blank page in the record book be properly inscribed to his memory, and that a copy be furnished to his wife and daughter, and also that a copy be given to the papers for publication.
